COMMERCIAL KITCHEN

CULTIVATING FLAVOR WE CAN ALL SAVOR

There are hundreds of “would-be” entrepreneurs in our Valley who would like to start a food-based business. This is exciting news, because small business owners are the heartbeat of our Valley’s economy and help to inject vibrancy into our community. The downside is that many new ventures fail for a variety of reasons – but getting help from incubators like the Clovis Culinary Center more than doubles their chance for success!

More than just a kitchen, our affiliated experts provide workshops to help food-based entrepreneurs with:

- Basic food handling
- Developing business plans
- Marketing and social media
- Securing permits and licenses
- Navigating contracts with government organizations
- Obtaining a wholesale license
- Acquiring funds for operations
- Applying for grants and other funding
- And more!

Your support can double the success rate for an entrepreneur!

The Clovis Culinary Center is a partially-subsidized nonprofit organization, intended for shared, community use for residents of the Central Valley. Our organization was established to promote community economic development. In addition to commercial kitchen space, the Center offers expert knowledge to aid business owners in making educated decisions on how to operate their business.

You can help these emerging businesses through financial support or professional expertise as an affiliated expert to the Clovis Culinary Center. Your contribution will help lead to more successful food-based businesses and a healthier Valley economy! Plus it delivers you the benefit of a tax-deductible donation to a licensed nonprofit organization and a way to pay your personal success forward.
